Sangamon County wants DHS held in contempt for delays in transferring inmates

STATE | Dean Olsen

Gov. JB Pritzker has overstepped his authority by giving one of his cabinet members “sole and unfettered discretion” over which criminal defendants should be admitted for psychiatric treatment to restore their fitness for trial, the Sangamon County sheriff says.

Sheriff Jack Campbell made that assertion in a June 22 lawsuit requesting damages against the Illinois Department of Human Services, including the costs of housing inmates at the Sangamon County Jail beyond the 20-day statutory requirement for admission to DHS facilities after judges have ruled inmates unfit.

State’s Attorney Dan Wright, representing Campbell, said in court documents that the constitutional “due-process” rights of defendants are being violated by a Pritzker executive order – issued in spring 2020 as the COVID-19 pandemic hit Illinois – that suspended the 20-day grace period and halted all admissions from county jails to DHS facilities except those granted by DHS Secretary Grace Hou. The order has been renewed and remains in effect.

What DHS is calling an “unprecedented backlog” of admissions to the department’s seven psychiatric hospitals, including Springfield’s McFarland Mental Health Center, is affecting county jails throughout the state. Defendants in jail often wait months to be transported for treatment to restore fitness, which can take months or longer.

DHS officials have said about 150 people are sitting in Illinois county jails after being declared temporarily unfit for trial and waiting for a DHS bed.

But state officials say admissions haven’t stopped. They say the department has admitted more than 1,200 “forensic” patients for treatment since Pritzker’s executive order took effect in April 2020.

Officials from DHS and the Illinois Attorney General’s office have defended the executive order and the state’s efforts to deal with the pandemic while working on long-term solutions to increase bed capacity in the DHS system for jail inmates.

“We can’t kick someone out of a bed just because the Sangamon County Sheriff’s Office says someone needs to go now,” Assistant Attorney General Maria Gray said in a June 27 Sangamon County court hearing.

Campbell’s lawsuit represents an escalation of public pressure on the governor and other state officials to come up with ways to deal with chronic capacity constraints in state psychiatric hospitals – a problem that only got worse because of staffing shortages and concerns about virus transmission during the pandemic.

“The Sangamon County Jail has been required to incur substantial overtime costs, implement special housing accommodations, provide more frequent supervision, and transport ‘unfit’ detainees to periodic hospital visits arising from incidents of self-harm or other related injury,” Campbell’s lawsuit against Pritzker and Hou says.

“The defendants’ acts and omissions have caused too many individuals to languish and decompensate into more severe manifestations of mental illness while DHS continues to violate ... placement and psychiatric treatment orders by judges across Illinois,” the lawsuit says.

Associate Judge Karen Tharp is scheduled to hear arguments July 7 on a proposed temporary restraining order to stop what Campbell and Wright describe as violations of state and federal law that put defendants and jail staff at increased risk of harm.

On a related front, Wright is waiting on Circuit Judge Adam Giganti to decide whether to hold the state in civil contempt, and potentially issue daily fines, in the case of Alfred Berry. The 33-year-old Springfield resident remained in the jail June 29 waiting transfer to DHS after being declared unfit April 7.

Berry is charged with car theft, violating an order of protection and criminal trespass to a residence.

If Giganti grants Wright’s request, the state would be held in contempt for tardy DHS admissions for the first time since the pandemic began – a symbolic move that could ramp up pressure on state officials to act.

Berry’s case was among four separate cases involving Sangamon County defendants waiting for transfer to DHS since early April.

Wright said his efforts to have the state declared in contempt for violating the maximum 20-day grace period resulted in three of the four men being admitted to DHS.

State officials said Wright’s court filings, which also were supported by the Sangamon County public defender’s office, had nothing to do with the recent admissions.

Wright asked Giganti for the contempt ruling at the June 27 hearing in the Berry case after Giganti ordered DHS Secretary Hou to appear in court to defend the department’s actions.

Wright pointed out to the judge that Hou didn’t show up to court, though Gray said it was her fault Hou wasn’t there.

Gray said there’s no evidence that the state is “willfully disregarding” court orders to admit for treatment defendants ruled unfit. She noted that the state eventually admitted 10 of 11 defendants from Sangamon County on a waiting list dating from earlier in the year.

Sangamon County officials said it cost the county more than $35,000 to house those 11 defendants after the 20-day grace period.

Wright filed complaints June 28 that could lead to contempt findings against the state in the cases of five more jail inmates declared unfit for trial and waiting for transfer to DHS longer than the 20-day grace period.

The inmates include Christopher N. Hall, 38, a Wisconsin resident charged with first-degree murder in the October 2021 shooting death of Hason Willis, 43, of Springfield.

Wright argued in court June 27 that there’s no evidence DHS has taken “meaningful steps” to reduce the backlog despite having ample resources to do so.

Gray said evidence is “clear that we have admitted individuals as it is possible for us to do so. ... There are not unlimited resources.”

But Assistant Public Defender Michael Sullivan said: “DHS has a job to do. They didn’t do it.”

Gray said in court documents that DHS’ “contingency plans during this unprecedented pandemic and under the relevant executive orders are intended to protect all current and potential patients, including (Berry), as well as the staff members that operate these facilities, visitors, jail staff and detainees and the general public.”

Gray said at a June 15 hearing on the Berry case that DHS can’t admit new patients from county jails when there are no beds available.

Wright told Illinois Times after the hearing that he wasn’t moved by Gray’s argument.

“In the most respectful way I can say it, that is the responsibility of the state of Illinois,” he said. “It is not the responsibility of county jails across the state, and that burden should not be borne by the inmates who are mentally ill and have been found unfit. ... This has been a years’-long issue, exacerbated by the pandemic.

“There has been no shortage of notice and good-faith discussion to give the state time to come up with a different plan, develop alternative facilities, come up with strategies to get more staff, and we’ve just exercised every possible alternative but to seek judicial intervention to preserve the constitutional rights of these inmates.” □

Editor’s note

Democrats have long known they can’t beat Republicans by trying to act like Republicans. Pretending makes them look insincere. Same goes for Republicans trying to beat trumpers. By claiming the Trump mantle for his voting record and for serving as state co-chair of Trump’s reelection campaign, Rodney Davis came off as trumpster light. The only way for Republicans to beat trumpers, and to make the GOP grand again, is to take them on square.

Mary Miller trumps Rodney Davis

Former president endorsed her at rally held days before the election

POLITICS | Scott Reeder

Three days after former president Donald Trump stumped for her in Illinois, U.S. Rep. Mary Miller won the GOP nomination in the 15th Congressional District, defeating fellow incumbent U.S. Rep. Rodney Davis.

With 83% of the estimated vote counted, Miller had 57.5% of the vote to Davis' 42.5%. It was a resounding victory for the freshman congresswoman facing the five-term incumbent.

Miller, a farmer from Oakland, will face Paul Lange, a Democratic precinct committeeman from Quincy, in the Nov. 8 general election. But she is all but assured of victory in the district that is 67% Republican.

The incumbent-on-incumbent lineup was a result of redistricting. The state lost a congressional district in the 2020 census and this pitted the pair against one another.

Davis issued this statement Tuesday night: "I'd like to congratulate Congresswoman Miller and President Trump on their victory tonight. This was a hard-fought campaign, and I wish her the best in representing the citizens of the 15th District.

"It's been the honor of a lifetime to serve the people of Illinois. I'm proud of the work our team has done for our constituents since 2013. Helping citizens cut through red tape and navigate the federal bureaucracy has always been one of my top priorities.

"We have delivered countless conservative policy solutions from historic tax cuts, student loan relief, farm programs and investing in our transportation system.

"We've always worked to govern and make Washington work. As Republicans are poised to retake the House, it's paramount that Republicans in Congress work to end dysfunction and deliver results for the American people."

Trump gave his speech endorsing Miller to a "Make America Great Again," or MAGA, crowd of thousands at the Adams County Fairgrounds in Mendon June 25.

Republican analysts debated among themselves as to what extent Trump's visit would help Miller.

"The polling is pretty clear on this. If Republican voters know that Donald Trump has endorsed her, the race favors Mary Miller. But if they don't know, it favors Rodney Davis," Patrick Pfingsten, a GOP political consultant, said the day following the rally.

One poll taken shortly before the Trump visit showed Davis 1 percentage point ahead.

But Mike Lawrence, former executive director of the Paul Simon Public Policy Institute, said he is skeptical of all polling done in primaries. He added Republican primary voters tend to be much more conservative than those who vote in general elections. This makes it difficult for pollsters to develop an accurate sample of those who will actually request a partisan ballot.

Davis is conservative but has avoided confrontational far-right politics. Whether it's taxes, guns, abortion or any of the other GOP litmus tests, Davis has consistently voted in a conservative manner.

But that didn't keep Miller from branding Davis a RINO – Republican in Name Only.

The term is a long-used one hurled against Republicans seen as not part of the conservative wing of the party. But since the political emergence of Trump, it has taken on a new meaning: anyone who is not a staunch Trump defender or is not an election denier or not a likely backer of his comeback 2024 presidential bid.

An apparent verbal flub on Miller's part became national headlines when at the Trump rally she made this attack on Davis:

"President Trump, on behalf of all the MAGA patriots in America, I want to thank you for the historic victory for white life in the Supreme Court yesterday. Our victories for life and the Second Amendment would have (never) been possible if the never Trump RINOs had gotten their way. I'm running against a RINO named Rodney Davis who betrayed conservatives."

Following the speech, a Miller spokesman told NBC News the congresswoman misread her notes and meant to say "right to life" rather than "white life."

This isn't the first time Miller, whose district includes about one-third of the Illinois counties, including part of Sangamon, has stirred controversy with her words. She made a remark in a 2021 speech that appeared to praise Adolf Hitler. She later apologized for that comment.

While Davis was gracious in defeat, the afternoon of election day he predicted victory and had harsh words for his opponent, who has avoided reporters' questions throughout her campaign.

"She doesn't want to answer questions. ... If more members of Congress like her continue to get elected, then that will become the norm – rather than somebody like me – who will stand up and take the tough questions," he said.

Republican consultant Pfingsten, a vocal critic of Miller, said she obviously misspoke Saturday. But because she has fostered a hostile relationship with the press, reporters covering the event were less likely to give her a break. He added her association with the House Freedom Caucus, whose members are known to make outrageous claims, further complicates the narrative.

Among Miller's allies in the caucus are Marjorie Taylor Greene, a Georgian who suggested in a Facebook post that wildfires in California were not natural.

In a now-deleted post from November 2018, Greene suggested that the blazes were started by former California Gov. Jerry Brown, Pacific Gas & Electric and Rothschild Inc., an investment firm frequently targeted by anti-Semitic conspiracy theorists. She speculated that laser beams from space were used to clear the way for a high-speed rail project, sparking the blazes.

Greene is said to have urged Trump to endorse Miller.

Lauren Boebert, the congresswoman from Colorado who falsely accused a Muslim member of Congress of being a terrorist, also is a member of the Freedom Caucus and spoke at the Trump event Saturday.

"Again, it comes back to these people being members of the 'Kook Klux Klan,'" Pfingsten said. "They are much more interested in being celebrities than being effective in office." □

Grants preserve local history

CAP CITY | Karen Ackerman Witter

The Sangamon County Historical Society recently awarded four grants for special projects that help preserve and promote local history.

Friends of the Original Leland Farm House Inc. – $1,000 to restore the 1860s Farm House Summer Kitchen which was moved from its original site in Leland Grove to Washington Park. Funds will be used to reinstall a staircase, door and windows and a brick walkway outside the historic building. The summer kitchen will house displays about the Leland family and original farmhouse.

Illinois State Museum Society – $900 to restore Vachel Lindsay's Lincoln Top Hat at the entrance to the Illinois State Museum. The three-foot-tall fiberglass version of Lincoln's stovepipe hat was painted by artist Felicia Olin in 2009 as part of the city's "Hats Off to Lincoln" project celebrating the 200th anniversary of Lincoln's birth.

Oak Ridge Cemetery – $1,000 to create a brochure and map which will identify and celebrate distinguished individuals of color buried at the cemetery. The booklet will assist descendants, historians and others in locating burial markers of African Americans interred at the cemetery.

Preservation Inc. – $1,000 to repair the damaged ceiling and walls in practice rooms around the stage of the 1908 music conservatory on the former Ursuline Academy campus.

All projects are to be completed between July 1, 2022, and June 30, 2023. To learn more about local history and the Sangamon County Historical Society, go to www.sangamonhistory.org or call 217-525-1961.

Fallout from fatal encounter

Man pleads guilty to charges connected to girlfriend's death from overdose

CRIME | Dean Olsen

A 40-year-old Springfield man who admitted to getting high with his girlfriend in a hotel room will be sentenced Aug. 4 after pleading guilty to concealing her death and then using a debit card to steal $1,500 from her bank account after she overdosed in January.

Prosecutors agreed to drop a related felony charge of unlawful possession of a stolen car against Loren Letz as part of a plea deal with the Sangamon County State's Attorney's Office.

The car was owned by Bobbi Brittany Graves, 36, a Springfield licensed practical nurse and mother of three who the Sangamon County coroner said died of an accidental overdose of fentanyl, buprenorphine, xylazine and methamphetamine Jan. 18 at a Springfield hotel.

Graves was four months' pregnant when her body was found by cleaning workers in a room at the Ramada by Wyndham Springfield North, 3281 Northfield Drive, Springfield. Letz told police he was responsible for Graves' pregnancy.

Because of a criminal record that included three years spent in prison for a Macon County burglary conviction, Letz is eligible for an extended sentence of between one and 10 years on the rare felony charge of concealment of a death and the felony theft charge.

Whatever sentence he receives could be cut in half for good behavior. He also is eligible for probation.

Letz is being held at the Sangamon County Jail on $350,000 bond, which means he would have to post 10%, or $35,000, to be released until the August sentencing hearing.

Letz showed no emotion as he appeared in court June 21 in a gray-and-black striped jail jumpsuit to admit guilt in the case.

He told Circuit Judge Ryan Cadagin, "Yes, sir," when Cadagin asked whether Letz understood what he was pleading guilty to and whether Letz understood his right to a trial. Letz said he was "very much satisfied" with his attorneys, Victoria Kerr and Michael Harmon.

Graves' mother, Roberta Hoffstadt Hahn, declined comment after the hearing.

She sat in the courtroom as Assistant State's Attorney Brian Shaw summarized the Springfield Police Department's investigation of the case. Hahn, a Springfield resident, looked down, shook her head and dabbed her nose with a tissue when Shaw said Graves died from an overdose.

Hahn has gone on social media to criticize police, prosecutors and the county coroner in the investigation, which was detailed in an Illinois Times story May 12.

Hahn previously told IT that she wanted Letz charged with the more serious offense of drug-induced homicide. The Class X felony carries a potential prison sentence of up to 30 years — 75% of which must be served.

Hahn contends there is enough evidence to show Letz took drugs with her daughter as part of a plan to kill her.

Police said there wasn't enough evidence to support a homicide charge. Before Graves' body was found, Hahn told police to report her daughter as a missing person.

Hahn said Graves told her before meeting Letz at the hotel that Graves, who was living with Hahn at the time, "was going to do enough heroin to kill herself."

Hahn later told police she "over-dramatized the details in order to ensure that the matter was handled with a sense of urgency," according to a police report.

Coroner Jim Allmon ruled Graves' death an accidental overdose and not a suicide.

Hahn said her daughter had been addicted to heroin "for some time," but had been "clean for several months," according to the police report.

Police said Graves' credit card was used to pay for a Ramada hotel room the night of Jan. 18, when it is believed Graves suffered the fatal overdose.

Letz later used cash to purchase the room for Jan. 19 and Jan. 20, according to police, and he tried to reserve the room Jan. 21 but was told it was unavailable.

Graves' body was discovered lying across a bed in the room about 1:15 p.m. Jan. 21. Letz left the hotel about noon Jan. 21, police said.

Letz told police that he noticed Graves was dead the morning after Jan. 18 and "freaked out."

Police said Letz "decided not to call anyone and kept paying for the room to stay with her. He said that he left in her car because he was out of his mind and grieving." □

Chris Schaller goes to prison

Former mortgage broker has appealed sentence

CRIME | Bruce Rushton

A former mortgage broker turned minor Springfield celebrity turned scam artist will spend nearly three years behind bars.

Sentenced recently to 30 months for wire fraud by U.S. District Court Judge Sue Myerscough, Chris Schaller, formerly of Rochester, did not go quietly.

After pleading guilty in August 2020, Schaller reversed course, asking to withdraw his guilty plea, shortly after his bond was revoked in the spring of 2021 and he was jailed following a string of positive tests for cocaine. He had also failed to file reports verifying his income, as required in conditions of release.

Besides acknowledging guilt on fraud charges during two meetings with prosecutors, Schaller, after pleading guilty, also offered to help investigate drug cases by helping capture conversations with other people, prosecutors told Myerscough during a January hearing. Schaller, prosecutors argued, wanted credit for cooperating with law enforcement by pleading guilty but changed his mind once incarcerated.

Monroe McWard, Schaller's lawyer, told the judge during the hearing that he was obligated to file the motion to withdraw on behalf of his client but that he hadn't researched Schaller's claim: An FBI agent, once Schaller landed in trouble, improperly acquired certain of the accused's business interests and sold them to benefit himself and others; subpoenas should have been issued.

"Court is adjourned," Myerscough announced after saying that she'd consider Schaller's motion.

"Your honor, I have an objection," the defendant responded.

After telling Schaller that he was represented by a lawyer tasked with making objections, Myerscough again adjourned court. On June 9, the judge sentenced him to 30 months, but Schaller hasn't given up, having filed on June 22 an appeal of his conviction with the U.S. Seventh Circuit Court of Appeals.

Schaller was once something of a Springfield fixture, with regular appearances on radio and front-page ads in the State Journal-Register touting his mortgage acumen. He boasted that he'd provide housing for homeless vets — it would be just like reality TV, with stunned hard-luck cases handed keys to homes — but didn't come through.

In pleading guilty to six counts of wire fraud, Schaller acknowledged fabricating paperwork, including phony W2s and fake canceled checks, to land mortgages for people who didn't qualify. Prosecutors say that he also doctored paperwork to lower the income of a woman who obtained an Illinois Housing Development Authority grant for a down payment. Depending on the client, he made child-support payments either appear or vanish in paperwork filed to obtain mortgages.

Federal prosecutors filed charges after the Illinois Department of Financial and Professional Regulation revoked Schaller's mortgage loan origination license in 2018, finding that he'd engaged in misconduct ranging from getting a mortgage for a man who made $9 an hour to convincing people they were signing mortgage paperwork when, in fact, they were signing homes over to him in contract-for-deed papers. In addition to revoking Schaller's license, IDFPR issued a $128,000 fine. Diamond Residential Mortgage Corp., which by then had terminated Schaller as manager of its Springfield branch, agreed in 2018 to establish a $1.27 million fund to make victims whole, with IDFPR finding that the Lake Forest-based company had been negligent in supervising the Springfield branch.

According to state investigators, Schaller used phony paperwork to obtain at least three loans through the Veterans Administration. After 30 months behind bars, Schaller, 48, faces three years of probation under Myerscough's sentence, which also includes a $61,000 restitution order, with nearly $33,000 payable to the Veterans Administration and the balance to Diamond Residential Mortgage Corp. He faced as many as 20 years in jail and a maximum $250,000 fine.

"The significant prison sentence imposed by Judge Myerscough shows that white-collar defendants who harm customers and steal from their employers and entities like the Veterans Administration will pay a stiff penalty for their actions," supervisory assistant U.S. attorney Doug Quivey said in a written statement. □

The elimination of cash bail in Illinois is set to take effect Jan. 1 as part of the recently passed SAFE-T Act. Sangamon County Sheriff Jack Campbell and state Sen. Steve McClure, R-Springfield, have been outspoken about their opposition, stating that it will lead to an increase in crime. PHOTO BY JOSH CATALANO

FALSELY ACCUSED

I have to reply to the false accusations made by state Sen. Steve McClure in the recent article ("Illinois ends cash bail," June 23).

McClure said the Faith Coalition "is not an unbiased group. It is a Democratic group that buses people in from Chicago for their partisan events in Springfield."

The Faith Coalition for the Common Good is a 501(c)3 nonprofit organization and we do not endorse or support any political party, nor politician. We never have and never will.

The Faith Coalition is an affiliate of Gamaliel of Illinois. We have sister organizations across the state who are doing similar work in addressing unjust racial and economic policies. Thirty-five Springfield-area institutions are members of the Faith Coalition, and they provide ample support and participation in our local events.

McClure has made these false accusations to demonize our organization and to further his agenda of keeping poor Black, brown and white people locked up. His opposition is to perpetuate the prison industrial complex which continues to treat poor folks as economic fodder to maintain the prisons he supports across the state.

The Faith Coalition is a faith-based organization seeking to do good in the community for the dignity of all. I would ask Sen. McClure this question: "What does it profit a man to gain the whole world and lose his soul?" It is a soulless act to lock people up for a $100 bond on a nonviolent charge they can't pay, forcing them into financial failure, loss of employment and sometimes, even custody of their children.

We are all innocent until proven guilty. Criminalizing those in jails because they can't afford bond is the narrative that McClure and Sheriff Jack Campbell use to get votes. *Shelly Heideman

NEEDED REFORM

I read the June 23 cover story regarding the legislation to end cash bail, which I believe is long overdue.

Many of these folks are charged with minor offenses and not dangerous if released. Those who remain behind bars often lose their jobs, and thus their ability to take care of their families. They are more likely to commit crimes later in life, possibly because they can't find employment. The decision to hold or release someone should be based on danger to the community, not on the amount of money in the defendant's pocket.

Regarding the revenue loss from bail reform, law enforcement organizations will need to approach city hall or the county board for their necessary funding, just like everybody else. I don't see that this is a bad thing. Are they really undisturbed about the potential for corruption with the current system?

We definitely need this legislation. I hope that it is not repealed.

WILL MISS MARK

I just read that Mark McDonald has been terminated and that "Illinois Stories" will end June 30 ("The last Illinois Stories," June 9). What a shame all around. This is the best show on PBS and has provided hours of entertainment and education about Illinois treasures. I find it hard to understand why anyone would want to terminate a proven winner.

Mark has done an amazing job with this series. If the Illinois Times story is accurate, being notified by a Zoom call that you are being terminated and the show is being canceled is extremely unprofessional. I am very disappointed in this whole affair.

Pritzker to call special session on abortion

POLITICS | Rich Miller

As I've been telling my newsletter subscribers for several weeks now, talks began in mid-May about a possible special state legislative session to address the abortion issue.

Gov. JB Pritzker, Senate President Don Harmon and House Speaker Chris Welch had some brief chats about bringing legislators back to town back then. Illinois is already an abortion rights oasis in the region, but the Democratic leadership wants to do more, so they talked about possibly having the legislature submit a constitutional amendment for voter approval in November to protect abortion rights. They also talked about passing some additional legislation that would, for instance, make sure abortion providers are protected from retaliatory action by other states (like revoking licenses, for instance).

Democratic state Senators then met privately about the issue and their leadership eventually decided to wait until they saw what exactly the US Supreme Court did about the topic.

Then, in mid-June, as the deadline for the US Supreme Court was fast approaching to issue its ruling on overturning Roe v. Wade, Democratic Senators were again surveyed on when they could come to Springfield for a special session. The following week, just ahead of the Supreme Court's striking down the decades-old precedent, House members were polled. Gov. Pritzker announced that he'd call a special session the day the high court finally acted.

As I write this, Senate Democrats have been advised to keep open July 6 and 7 as possible return dates.

So, what will they do?

Planned Parenthood of Illinois has a list of demands that is worth looking at as a possible roadmap. The group's political arm, Planned Parenthood Illinois Action, recently told its supporters that abortion rights are "meaningless without the resources to access abortion," and their list reflects that belief.

For instance, they want the state legislature to allow nurse practitioners to provide "early abortion procedures." According to the group, doing so "would quickly expand the pool of qualified providers."

The group also wants to streamline the process for "out-of-state health care professionals to be licensed and credentialed in Illinois," to help increase the number of abortion providers. Gov. Pritzker said on the "Meet the Press Now" program that perhaps as many as 30,000 people a year will travel to Illinois to receive an abortion, which is up from 10,000 last year.

"We're going to need to expand capacity in our state," Pritzker said. "We're going to need to make sure that we have the health care personnel that are necessary to perform these procedures and to guarantee that medical abortion is available."

Despite campaign claims by several House and Senate Democratic legislators that the General Assembly "fully funded" Planned Parenthood earlier this year, the group wants a lot more state money spent on things like helping providers to "build capacity" in existing and new locations.

Planned Parenthood also wants the legislature to provide funding for "practical and logistical support for patients who face barriers to access because they have to travel," calling the money "essential to ensuring that people can access abortion."

The idea of subsidizing travel and even temporary housing for out-of-staters could be a tough sell in the General Assembly, even among many pro-choice Democrats. But I was told by the governor's office that nothing is yet off the table.

Something that Planned Parenthood hasn't asked for but is being actively discussed is a non-binding statewide referendum on the topic this November, now that it's too late to put a constitutional amendment on the ballot. The question could be as simple as asking voters if they want a constitutional amendment to protect reproductive rights. It would have the benefit of helping Democrats drive voter turnout.

But Planned Parenthood issued several warnings last week that made clear it wanted more than a few feel-good measures, including an official telling a St. Louis Post-Dispatch reporter that if the governor "wants to join the ranks of other haven states that are truly protecting access and putting money behind that promise, then [funding] is a critical component of that work."

In other words, political moves and simple changes to state law will not be enough for Planned Parenthood. And so, the Democrats have now somehow found themselves looking at a potential political minefield during the special session instead of what they likely thought would be a quick and easy layup. □

The cult of Trump

WEEKLY REEDER | Scott Reeder

It was a carnival of the bizarre.

As soon as I stepped out of my vehicle, I saw a “F--- Biden” flag flying next to someone’s RV. A pickup nearby had the same message painted on both its doors – with firearms forming each letter.

Then I saw someone walk by wearing a T-shirt that said, “Jesus Christ is my savior and Donald Trump is my president.”

Nearby, a booth was selling bumper stickers that said “FU46.” Biden is our 46th president.

I thought of the words of Jesus who said in Matthew 5:22: “If you say that someone is worthless, you will be in danger of the fires of hell.”

June 25, I covered my first Donald Trump rally.

But it was hardly my first presidential event. I’ve covered rallies for Bill Clinton, both Bushes and Barack Obama. But the Trump rally in Mendon, Illinois, was different.

I’m an evangelical Christian. I’m a rural voter. And I’m a white male who supports limited government and low taxes. Statistically, I ought to be right in the middle of the Trump sweet spot.

Sorry, folks. I’m not there. For the life of me, I don’t understand the obsequious devotion many have for our 45th president.

Mike Lindell, the CEO of My Pillow, spoke at the Trump rally of his Christian faith, overcoming his addiction to crack cocaine and becoming a successful businessman. As annoying as I find his television ads, I have to say I find his personal story uplifting. After all, Christianity is about redemption.

But then I saw T-shirts being hawked that read: “Joe and the Hoe Gotta Go.” Why are they calling Kamala Harris a hoe? It’s obviously a racist pejorative too often hurled at Black women. Some might say it’s a reference to her long-ago affair with San Francisco Mayor Willie Brown. I don’t condone adultery.

But Trump has had multiple extramarital affairs during his lifetime and his supporters seem willing to look past those. And in the case of Lindell, the forgiveness of his past sins is celebrated – along with his support for Trump.

I thought of Jesus’ words in John 8:7 when a woman caught in the act of adultery was thrown in front of him in the temple court. The religious leaders demanded that she be stoned. But Jesus said, “Whichever one of you has committed no sin may throw the first stone at her.”

I was perplexed enough by this seeming dichotomy that I asked a Trump supporter about it.

His name is David Blumenshine, and he coordinates GOP gubernatorial hopeful Darren Bailey’s campaign for much of central Illinois. He also was at the rally.

I asked him, as a believer, if he was OK with the “F- Biden” flags all around us.

“My wife and I aren’t, uh, real pleased about it, but you know, it is what it is. We have a First Amendment for a reason.”

I agree that Trump and his supporters have every right to say those things. But that doesn’t mean they’re constructive, unifying or good for the country.

Back when I was a college student, then-vice president George H.W. Bush said after a debate, “We tried to kick a little ass last night,” in his face-off with Democratic vice-presidential nominee Geraldine Ferraro.

Americans were outraged at the crudeness of the statement and dismayed that such words would come from the lips of a sitting vice president.

In our post-Trump political world, such a statement would hardly raise an eyebrow.

Many in the crowd were ebullient over the U.S. Supreme Court’s recent rulings overturning Roe v. Wade and expanding gun owner rights. Trump promised he would appoint justices who supported such measures – and he delivered.

Those are political accomplishments his supporters can point to when explaining their support for the 45th president. All politicians cite their accomplishments, but few have the devotion that Trump draws.

In my more than 35 years in the news business, I’ve never covered an American political rally like this one. The closest I have come was in 1999 in Havana, Cuba.

I had traveled there with Gov. George Ryan, and Fidel Castro held an impromptu news conference. A reporter asked the dictator, who had ruled for 40 years, if it was about time for there to be an election.

Castro walked out of the news conference and stood before a crowd of hundreds, perhaps thousands, who had waited in the heat to see him.

Castro yelled, “Is it time for an election?” The crowd in unison shouted “No! No! No!” And then they chanted, “Fidel, Fidel, Fidel.”

It was unlike anything I have witnessed – until this past week.

As Trump cited his accomplishments, the crowd responded with their own chant, “Thank you, Trump. Thank you, Trump. Thank you, Trump.”

My mind was transported back to Havana, and once again, I thought: “This is a personality cult.” □

Short trips for mid-summer

SUMMER | Mary Bohlen

If your social media feed makes it seem as if everyone but you is on an exotic vacation, don't despair. Nearby destinations can bring you a touch of other countries without the cost and hassle.

How about marveling at Michelangelo's artwork just 40 miles from Springfield? Checking out a magnificent basilica that puts some in Europe to shame down the road in St. Louis? Or heading to the southwestern Chicago suburbs to walk among colorful sculptures straight out of Mexico? Pack up your friends and family and hit the road for these adventures and more.

Decatur

Decatur may seem an unlikely spot to view life-size replicas of the Sistine Chapel, but the Decatur Civic Center is hosting "Michelangelo – A Different View" from July 8 to Aug. 7. The traveling exhibit features four sections with Genesis and its nine pictures as the exhibit's heart, according to the center's marketing director, Sarah Butts.

"This exhibit has been traveling in larger cities and we decided we wanted to do something different this summer, when our arena isn't used much," she says. "It is breathtaking and when you are walking through, you feel like you are at the Vatican," which has given the exhibit its stamp of approval.

In addition to the Genesis part, visitors can view sections of heroic tales, prophets and the Last Judgment, and listen to narration through their smartphones (bring your own ear buds). The center also will provide a written guide.

Butts says the center expects thousands of visitors. The exhibit will be open from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Tuesday and Wednesday and 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. Thursday through Sunday. Admission is $16 for adults for all days except Saturday and Sunday when it is $17. Children 6-14 are $10 any day.

While you are in Decatur, you also can visit Scovill Zoo and the Children's Museum of Illinois. Scovill has an ice cream safari scheduled for July 17 and offers free admission on Thursdays during July and August. Hours are 9:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. daily. The children's museum is closed Monday but open from 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday and noon to 4:30 Sunday.

For a pleasant evening on a hillside overlooking Lake Decatur, head to the Devon Amphitheatre in Nelson Park and enjoy concerts with a variety of music, free movie nights or free moonlight yoga at the 3,200-seat open air venue.

St. Louis

The Cathedral Basilica of St. Louis, west of downtown, rivals any your Europe-traveling friends may see, with one of the largest collections of mosaics in the world.

The grand, three-domed building features mosaics covering almost every inch of walls and ceiling, some 83,000 square feet.

The Byzantine glass mosaics in dazzling colors and the Italian marble mosaics with intricate designs offer scenes from the Bible and St. Louis Catholic history. In the small basement museum you can learn how the building was constructed and how the cathedral became a basilica after Pope John Paul II visited.

The basilica is open daily from 7 a.m. to 5 p.m. with mass at 7 a.m., 8 a.m. and 12:05 p.m. Visitors are asked not to walk around during masses and should remember to give their necks a break from gazing up at the awe-inspiring scenes. Entrance is free but the museum asks for a $2 donation.

If you visit on a Wednesday through early August, stick around for the Whitaker Jazz Festival at 8 p.m. at the Missouri Botanical Garden. Catherine Neville of Explore St. Louis says the festival is a free family event with many attendees bringing blankets and picnics. The main MOBOT entrance is closed for renovation but signs will direct you to alternate entrances.

The Tennessee Williams Festival of St. Louis is on tap for Aug. 18-28 at Grand Center and the St. Louis Hill with the theme of "Tennessee Williams and Italy." It will include plays, films, tributes, panels, bocce and a walking tour of the historically Italian Hill.

A stop reminiscent of open-air European markets is Souard, south of downtown in a historically French neighborhood. Begun in 1779, Souard is one of the oldest farmers markets in the United States and offers produce, meat, baked goods, spices, flowers and concessions. Souard operates Wednesday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Saturday 7 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Neville notes that "every weekend it is buzzing with people."

Families also might want to take in the St. Louis Aquarium and giant Ferris wheel at Union Station. "If you are coming to St. Louis, those are two fantastic places," Neville says.

Southwestern Chicago suburbs

The Mexican Cultural Center of DuPage is partnering with other local entities to bring "Alebrijes: Creatures of a Dream World" to Cantigny Park in Wheaton. Created by six artists from Mexico, the exhibit features 48 brightly colored sculptures scattered throughout the park's plantings and fountains.

Such sculptures as "Avellano," of a two-headed dog, and "Malucan," with its toucan-like beak, will delight both adults and children. The exhibit of 18 monumental alebrijes and 30 smaller ones runs through October. Parking is $5 but otherwise, admission is free.

Cantigny Park also houses the Army's First Division Museum and several tanks sit among tall trees. The Robert R. McCormick House, home to the park's founder and longtime Chicago Tribune publisher, is closed for renovations. Eight miles away in Lisle, you can view more larger-than-life sculptures at the Morton Arboretum. "Human+Nature" by South African artist Daniel Popper includes eight of his largest installations to date. Scattered among the arboretum's signature mature trees, the sculptures stand 15 to 26 feet tall; consist of concrete, wood, fiberglass and steel; and weigh several metric tons. "Hallow," a woman's head and chest, greets visitors near the park's entrance while "Heartwood" is a bisected face aiming to connect humans and trees. The sculptures are accessible from walking trails or nearby parking lots. The arboretum opens at 7 a.m. and closes at sunset every day. Reserved entry tickets are $16 for adults, $14 for seniors and $11 for children 2-17. Wednesdays offer discounts for all age groups. Once your globe-trotting friends check out your photos, they may copy you in exploring these nearby gems.

Camping in the Land of Lincoln

SUMMER | Carey Smith

When I began camping again as an adult, I was not sure what primitive camping meant. Making a shelter with pine boughs? Starting a fire with a bow drill? Foraging for food?

In fact, primitive camping simply means camping in a tent. It's not nearly as popular as RV camping, which means tent campers often have more privacy and cheaper camp fees at campgrounds they frequent.

With many people scaling back their summer vacation plans due to less funds and higher gas prices, primitive camping not far from home can be a way to make sure your family still has a lot of fun this summer!

A couple of notes, I personally prefer to camp at sites that have a separate area for primitive camping due to the quiet and darkness that is vital for sleeping (especially for little ones). Also, it's usually advisable to make a reservation, as arriving at a full campsite is depressing, especially with children in tow.

Jim Edgar Panther Creek Fish and Wildlife Game Area (JEPC)

10149 County Hwy 11, Chandlerville
217-452-7741

Known to locals as Site M, this is by far my favorite camping site, and not only because it is near my hometown. The primitive camping area is hike-in, as the parking lot is a quarter- to half-mile from camping spots. This 5-10-minute walk-in creates a low-demand environment, which is wonderful for a camper like myself whose primary concern is for the quiet nature of a place. The downside: pack lightly or you'll get in a good hike before you set up your tent.

Campsites offer three-sided shelters for inclement weather, picnic tables and fire pits. I greatly prefer sleeping under the stars, as JEPC is located in some of the darkest skies of Illinois, which makes for excellent nighttime viewing. The camp sites are spread out for privacy.

The state park itself offers hiking and mountain bike riding, as well as fishing and boating. Pit toilets are available, but there are no showers at the campsite.

KOA Springfield Journey

4320 KOA Road, Rochester
koa.com/campgrounds/springfield

The new owners are making improvements to this KOA. Individual tent sites come with electricity. There is no water service, but access is nearby, as is a pool, playground, mini-golf, bike rentals, restrooms and dog park. It's fully shaded with level, grassy sites.

The Kampground

11380 Darnell Road, Mechanicsburg
217-364-4534

A quiet and peaceful family campground on 25 acres, The Kampground's amenities include a fishing pond, hiking trails, basketball and volleyball courts, fire pits, swings, outdoor lounge and patio areas, and lots of family fun. Music events happen throughout the season. Primitive camping sites are available in the timber next to the pond and all around the pond or camping is available in the RV section as well.

Crazy Horse Campground

2114 Crazy Horse Road, Ashland
217-886-2089

Crazy Horse is truly an affordable and exciting vacation not far from home. This campground is a favorite for my child because of all the extras it offers. He loves the big lodge with the pool table, foosball and arcade games. They sell snacks kids love, along with hot food, which is a nice departure from our normal steady camping diet of PB&Js. There are also canoes and paddleboats, mini-golf and more.

My family tends to camp here on quieter weeknights, but programming is available every weekend, from chocolate pudding slip 'n' slides to talent shows to adult prom. If you like excitement, you're in for a treat!

Lincoln's New Salem Campground

15588 History Lane, Petersburg
217-632-4000

This campground offers a separate area for primitive campers, with the main attraction being its close proximity to Lincoln's New Salem. A playground is on site.

Riverside Campgrounds

4115 Sandhill Road, Springfield
217-753-0630

Bordering the Sangamon River and Carpenter Park, the great outdoors (as well as close proximity to Springfield's Lincoln sites) is the main focus of this campsite, which allows tent camping in the grassy areas around the RV campsites. Showers and bathrooms available. There is a playground as well as a nearby BMX bike track.

Sangchris Lake State Park Camping

9898 Cascade Road, Rochester
217-498-9208

Both the Deer Run Campground on the north end of the lake and Hickory Point Campground near the east boat dock allow primitive camping. The Hickory Point Campground has a shower house and restrooms. Amenities include fishing, boating and a volleyball court, as well as a playground. Views are spectacular as nature is the main attraction here.

Double J Campground & RV Park

9683 Palm Road, Chatham
217-483-9998

Separate primitive camping sites are available. Amenities include walking trails, open-air game room, pool, shuffleboard, basketball, volleyball and horseshoes, with access to Springfield's bike trails nearby.

If your favorite primitive campground is not on this list, please write a letter to the editor to fill us in. Happy camping!

Carey Smith didn't realize how blessed she was as a kid to see the Milky Way, shooting stars and an extra-special aurora borealis, growing up in the darkest skies in Illinois.

Break out a box (or can) of wine

High-quality wines now come in environmentally friendly packaging

SUMMER | Ashley Meyer

One does not usually associate high-quality wines with boxes and cans, but that may be changing. An increasing number of well-regarded producers are packaging delicious, quaffable wines in boxes and cans. And why not? The average time between when a bottle of wine is purchased and when it is consumed is just 18 minutes. Winemakers are well aware of this and have adjusted wine styles over the years to make wines that are delicious and balanced without needing to age in bottle.

Screw caps were one of the first alternatives in wine packaging to hit the market. Wine was first sealed under screw caps in France in the late 1950s, but Stelvin closures (the current brand name for screw caps), didn't gain mainstream traction until 2000 when a group of winemakers in Australia's Clare Valley, frustrated with the rates of cork-related faults in their wines, worked together to develop a solution. They collaborated to purchase the equipment and components needed to bottle their wines under screw caps, which at that point, were not available in Australia.

Their effort gained attention and built momentum throughout the country's wine industry. Today, about a third of wine globally is sealed with a screw cap, and consumers of high-quality wine have accepted screw caps as a good, and often preferable, alternative to corks for many wines. Wines that are meant to be drunk young, just one or two years after bottling, are not ones that generally benefit from any kind of oxygen exposure in the bottle, as opposed to a red Bordeaux-style blend that will soften and develop as it is exposed to the tiny amounts of air that will enter the bottle over time under a traditional cork closure. Unlike traditional corks, screw caps allow almost no air to enter the bottle, which is actually an advantage when dealing with a citrusy sauvignon blanc or juicy rose.

For those same reasons, certain styles of wine are also incredibly well-suited to being packaged in cans or boxes. Unless it is a specific type of wine that will benefit from extended bottle aging, its quality will not be damaged or reduced in any way if packaged in a can, bladder bag or Bota box. There's also an environmental benefit -- wines packaged this way often have a significantly lower carbon footprint because of reduced package weight and the recyclable nature of the components.

Today, there are more high-quality wines available in alternative packaging than ever before, and summer is the perfect time to take the plunge. Whether it's to take on a boat, a picnic or simply to sip while you're making dinner on a Tuesday, here are some recommendations for delicious pours out of the box (or can).

Union Wine Co, Pinot Gris, 12-ounce can, $6

This is a classic Willamette pinot gris with aromas of honey and Asian pear. Light-bodied with balanced acid and medium alcohol, it has refreshing flavors of lemongrass, apple and wet stone. Perfect with spicy peanut noodles or aged white cheddar.

McBride Sisters, She Can Sauvignon Blanc, 12-ounce can, $9

The largest Black-owned wine company in the United States, the McBride Sisters produce quality wines in both New Zealand and the U.S. This New Zealand sauvignon blanc is full of fresh grapefruit and cut grass aromas with lively acidity and ripe peach flavors. Try it with fresh goat cheese and grilled peaches or lemon-shrimp skewers.

La Nevera Rosado 2020, 3 L box, $34

A pretty salmon hue highlights the juice watermelon and lime aromas of this dry Spanish rose. Rosewater and strawberry flavors are supported by good acidity and medium alcohol. This is a great party wine and perfect for making big batches of "froze." A perfect pairing with fried chicken or spicy tuna rolls.

From the Tank Vin Rouge, 3L box, $41.99

This organic blend of grenache, syran and carignan from Southern France is meant to harken back to old French tradition where locals would walk down to the winery to fill a jug with the most recent vintage of their inexpensive, easy-drinking blend. Indeed, this ruby-hued wine is the perfect red for casual summer sipping. The wine is naturally fermented, meaning the fermentation started on its own from the indigenous yeasts present in the winery.

Aromas of cherry, dried oregano and cocoa give way to cherry-berry flavors with a layer of refreshing minerality. Pair this with spicy chorizo con queso or grilled crostini topped with heirloom tomatoes, basil and burrata cheese. □

Ashley Meyer lives and writes in Springfield with her husband, kids and too many chickens. She studied viticulture and winemaking at Lincoln University in New Zealand and is currently preparing to take the exam for the WSET Level 3 Award in Wine.

MUSIC

Charanga Tropical plays Cuban-infused Latin music at the Y-Block this Thursday for the Levitt AMP concert music series.

Fourth (and other days) of July music

NOW PLAYING | Tom Irwin

June was a flash, and now here we are rolling into July 2022, blasting our way to Independence Day weekend, otherwise known as Fourth of July time. Always ready to create and enjoy a celebration, Americans will put on a party, and that means live music is front and center, as it should be, in the humble opinion of this writer (and working musician). So, let's go see what's in store this week as we whoop it up for the birthday of the good ol' USA as occasioned by the 246th anniversary of the signing (debatable) and adoption (definitely) of our Declaration of Independence by the Second Continental Congress in 1776.

I spy a larger than usual number of concert events going on, most likely due to the acceleration of entertainment activities for the celebratory weekend. Let's start on Thursday, June 30, with the Levitt AMP music series downtown at the Y-Block when world-renowned Cuban-styled group Charanga Tropical shakes the outdoor stage with special guest Tino Knight ramping things up at 6 p.m. The news on the street (and the Levitt AMP Springfield Facebook page) says the music will go a little longer than usual (and that goes well with these Latin dance sounds) because of downtown fireworks happening at 9:30 for an early holiday treat.

You might want to check out the upcoming acts for this primo, downtown, weekly, Thursday night summer concert series. I just did, and saw some zydeco up for next week, plus real good gospel on Aug. 4, and that's super cool by me. Bummer about the cancellation last week due to bandmates contracting COVID overseas, but the Davina & the Vagabonds show has been rescheduled for Wednesday, Aug. 3.

Also on Thursday night, in another concert thingy, Sherman Village Park Amphitheater presents Cowboy: The Ultimate Kid Rock with opener the Matt Miller Band (Matt is from Peoria and has toured with lots of big-time country acts), but you'll have to wait until Sunday night in Sherman for your fireworks show.

Moving on to Friday evening, here comes Decade of Decadence, billed as Illinois' No. 1 80s band, as they bring their big hair and metal pop-rock show to Danenberger's outdoor stage, playing all the hits from Van Halen, Def Leppard, Poison, RATT, Whitesnake, Motley Crue and many more groups of that ilk. If you wanted to dress all 80s and even go big hair too, I think it would be appropriate and much appreciated by the band and the good folks at DFV.

For our next big shindig, the Springfield Jaycees Capital City Celebration returns to the Y-Block area after a four-year hiatus with a parade, patriotic dog pageant, children's area, live music and more spread out on Saturday and Sunday, plus fireworks both nights. To satisfy our music interests, Wood 'N' Nickel Society (1:30 p.m.) and Springfield Municipal Band (6 p.m.) get it going on Saturday, while Calia Cole (3 p.m.), Astrofix (3:30 p.m.) and the Shenanigans (6 p.m.) take it to the limit on Sunday.

For a fun and interesting time on Monday, July 4 proper, the Elijah Iles House (Seventh and Cook) hosts the annual Clara Irwin (a distant cousin from the mid-1800s and spouse of the second owner of Iles House, Robert Irwin) Strawberry and Lawn Party (3-6 p.m.). With very fitting music from Peaches and Bacon, a wonderful fiddle and banjo old-time music duo, plus drinks and strawberries available for partygoers, this one does it just right.

And you won't believe the wide assortment of music happening every day of the week, so be sure to take a gander at our listings. Happy Independence Day, America. □

Make salad the main course

Enjoy summer's bounty

FOOD | Ashley Meyer

Whether you're looking for healthful make-ahead lunches or a colorful dish for a cookout, these recipes make the most out of summer's bounty. All are nutritionally complete and can be modified to suit many different dietary requirements. Use whatever veggies you have on hand when making the Pan-Asian noodle salad. The addition of shelled edamame adds a significant protein bump, as do the peanuts and sesame seeds. Iron-rich beans are boosted by the high levels of vitamin C in the peppers and citrus juice in both the Mediterranean Pantry Salad and the Spicy Quinoa Black Bean Salad.

The fact that they're all vegetarian or vegan is just a happy accident. While lovely alongside a piece of grilled chicken or salmon, they're all nutritionally complete as a main course. If planning to take one of these salads to a cookout or to serve guests, it's best to make it on the day you plan to serve it in order to keep the colors fresh and bright. However, they will keep well in the fridge for about three to four days, ideal for quick lunches and dinners.

Pan-Asian Noodle Salad

10 ounces noodles, such as soba, rice sticks or angel hair
2 tablespoons sesame oil, divided
Juice of 2 limes, divided
½ cup peanut butter
¼ cup soy sauce
2 tablespoons honey or pure maple syrup
Chili paste or sriracha sauce, to taste
2 cloves garlic, grated
Up to 5 cups prepared veggies, such as bell pepper, carrot, cabbage, cucumber, zucchini, snow peas, shelled edamame and/or celery, cut into thin slices or matchsticks
¼ cup each cilantro and mint leaves, torn or roughly chopped
3 green onions, thinly sliced
½ cup chopped unsalted dry roasted peanuts
2 tablespoons toasted sesame seeds
Additional lime wedges, for serving

Preparation

Cook the noodles according to the package directions. When finished cooking, rinse the noodles under cold water then drain them well. Toss the noodles with one tablespoon of sesame oil and the juice of half a lime, then set them aside to cool while you prepare the sauce and vegetables.

Pan-Asian noodle salad.

Juice the remaining three lime halves into a small mixing bowl. Add the peanut butter, soy sauce, honey, chili paste and minced garlic along with a tablespoon of water and mix well to combine. Set aside. (This sauce can be made ahead and stored for a week in the fridge.)

Wash and thinly slice the vegetables. Snow peas can be halved or left whole if small, and may need to have the string running along the seam of the pods removed. Frozen edamame should be blanched briefly in boiling water before using. After blanching run cold water over them to stop the cooking process.

Toss the prepared vegetables, chopped herbs and green onions with the dressed noodles, then drizzle with peanut sauce and gently toss again. To serve, scatter the chopped peanuts over the top of the noodles with additional lime wedges on the side.

Mediterranean Pantry Salad

1 can cannellini or garbanzo beans, rinsed and drained
1 cucumber, seeded and cut into 1/2 -inch dice

1 pint cherry tomatoes, halved
1 bell pepper, diced
1 bunch torn or shredded kale
½ red onion, sliced thin
½ cup pitted kalamata olives, halved
½ cup crumbled feta
¼ cup minced parsley
6-8 basil leaves, thinly sliced
1 tablespoon minced fresh oregano or 1 tsp dried oregano
2 cloves garlic, minced
¼ cup olive oil
Juice of one lemon
Salt, pepper and chili flakes to taste

Preparation

Combine the beans, vegetables, feta and herbs and mix well. Mix together the minced garlic, olive oil, lemon juice and a pinch of salt and pepper in a small bowl, then drizzle over the bean mixture and mix gently. Refrigerate for an hour before serving to allow flavors to meld and kale to soften.

Spicy Quinoa Black Bean Salad

2 cups cooked quinoa, at room temperature
1 can black beans, drained and rinsed
1 red bell pepper, diced
1 jalapeno, seeds removed and cut into small dice, optional
1 cup cooked corn kernels (fire-roasted is especially good)
1 cup thinly sliced red cabbage
½ red onion, diced
1 bunch cilantro, washed well and minced (include the stems)
1 or 2 cloves minced garlic
Juice of 1 lime
1 teaspoon honey or agave, to taste
¼ cup oil, such as olive or avocado
1 teaspoon ground cumin
1 tablespoon adobo sauce (from a can of chipotles in adobo sauce), optional
Salt and pepper to taste
Sliced avocado, to serve

Preparation

Combine the quinoa, black beans, pepper, jalapeno, corn, cabbage, onion and cilantro in a mixing bowl. Mix together the minced garlic, lime juice, honey, oil, cumin and adobo sauce and drizzle over the quinoa salad. Toss well to combine, then refrigerate until ready to serve. Offer sliced avocado as an accompaniment if desired.

THE CALENDAR

Independence Day Celebrations

Friday, July 1 through
Monday, July 4
Various locations

HOLIDAY HAPPENINGS | The unanimous Declaration

it This week's calendar is packed with holiday happenings for Independence Day and you will not have to look far for fun ways to celebrate. Lincoln's New Salem State Historic Site will have activities on July 1-2 and July 5, with period demonstrations and a reading of the Declaration of Independence each day. The Capital City Celebration begins on Saturday, July 2 and runs through July 3 in downtown Springfield where you can enjoy a parade, children's activities and live music. On Monday, July 4, stop by the Elijah Iles House and join Clara Irwin's Strawberry Party to enjoy strawberries and drinks while listening to Peaches and Bacon. Also, on Monday, Chatham-Auburn Memorial VFW Post 4763 will host the annual reading of the Declaration of Independence by local veterans' groups and others at the Chatham Veterans Memorial Square. Afterwards you can join in a lively discussion about the Founding Fathers and the Declaration at the Parchments and Pints event. Of course, there will be plenty of places to catch fireworks displays, such as Rock the Dock at the Lake Springfield Marina, Knight's Action Park's Fireworks Spectacular and the Chatham Jaycee Freedom Fest. Check the calendar listings and the Facebook pages, and then start celebrating.

Fill the grid with digits so as not to repeat a digit in any row or column, and so that the digits within each heavily outlined box will produce the target number shown, by using addition, subtraction, multiplication or division, as indicated in the box. A 6x6 grid will use 1-6.

2÷	7÷			1-
			4-	13÷
3-				10÷
2÷			10÷	9÷		2-
